

This study is focused on determining the pattern of injuries both reported and unreported that occur in the settlements of Kinawataka suburbs, Nakawa division Kampala.

The study was carried out during the month of March and April 2014. The independent variables in the study were the types of injuries that occurred, causes of these injuries and the predisposing factors to these injuries while the dependent variable was the pattern of these injuries.